No person in this territory is so poor that a little—a very little, perhaps—of his income can't be saved, and saved regularly. We have really no squalid poverty here.

And if everyone will save a little, and save that little often, we'll never have real poverty here.

LANTERN PARADE OF JAPANESE IS PREMIER EVENT

PRIZE-WINNERS

Three awards were made to the best entries in the Japanese lantern parade on Saturday night, as follows:
1st—H. Kishi, who entered a beautiful car, the striking feature of which was a huge revolving canopy, beautifully lighted with colored lanterns.
2nd—M. Ohta, entry representing a charming bungalow, hung with electric lights.
3rd—Japanese Cooking School. The central feature was a huge white-frosted cake, on the center of which stood a life-size figure of a woman.

The Japanese lantern parade last Saturday night, the third and final event of a day filled with brilliant and spectacular display, was a gorgeous pageant of colorful lighting effects. Thousands of Japanese were in line, several scores of floats and freak exhibits appeared, and the downtown thoroughfare from Aala Park to the Capitol was packed with a mass of humanity of every race extant.

The Saturday evening crowd was augmented not only by the holiday celebrants from the other islands and tourists from the mainland but by an additional influx of approximately 3500 plantation laborers with their families from all parts of Oahu, whose employers had given them a vacation particularly to join the week-end festivities.

The lantern parade was distinctly Oriental, yet quaintly reminiscent of America, or the Oriental idea of America. Sprinkled generously throughout the display of huge Japanese lanterns, toy lanterns, twinkling small lights and quaint costumery and buffoonery were Japanese portraits of George Washington.

The pageant was led by several large platoons of hundreds of young men carrying Japanese lanterns. As they arrived at the reviewing stand off King street, opposite the Capitol, the companies saluted en masse with raucous-throated banzais and this was repeated as they passed the front steps of the building on their way through to Hotel street. Following these came the floats, presenting weird artistic effects and weird mingling of colors, yet all extremely pleasing to the eye. Diminutive temples, gabled houses with their gay singing and dancing girls and innumerable other devices of unusual pattern, all brilliantly lighted, held the spectators' attention until the final exhibit, a repetition of the afternoon pageant, arrived. This was the Blandford Twins, only one of which was working.

Each of the principal Japanese newspapers, the Hawaii Shinpo, Chronicle and Nippo Jiji, was represented by large squads of lantern bearers and the Hochi had a large pen bearing a sign to the effect that it was equally ready to boost the booster as to knock the knocker. This attracted much attention and comment throughout the line of march.

Following the loading of 500 tons of bunker coal, the Pacific Mail liner Nile will sail for Japan, China and the Philippines at 5 o'clock this evening.

The art of tailoring can produce nothing better. In fact, only tailoring which is an art can produce combinations of style, fit, tones and general satisfaction as are incorporated in the new suits that are offered to the well-dresser by the Clarion. And the gents' furnishings are equally up to the minute.
